Stage 1 (HTML5, CSS3, Javascript basics)

The HTML5 training rounds the basics of the frontend portion of web development. By learning HTML5, CSS3 and Javascript we introduce you to the latest tools and standards which are an essential part of making web page or application frontends. By finishing this training, you will not only be able to grasp the concept of frontend technologies, standards and workflows, but also get slowly introduced to other uses and platforms like building backend, mobile and desktop apps.

- HTML5 & CSS3 – I level | 30 classes | 210 EUR
- HTML5 APIs & Javascript – II level | 30 classes | 210 EUR

Stage 2 (Node.js, MongoDB)

Based on the Google Chrome's V8 JavaScript engine, Node.js’s attracted developers who already used JavaScript on the frontend, but also backend developers who needed an event-driven platform for their projects. It now occupies more than a quarter of the developer job offerings. MongoDB is an inseparable part of Node.js. It's object oriented database design, and having JavaScript as an internal processing language, proved that usability and speed is all that matters.

- Node.js & MongoDB | 30 classes | 210 EUR

Stage 3 (React.js)

ReactJS is an open source JavaScript library which is used for building single page applications. It is used for handling interface for web and mobile apps. Go Course

Go, often referred to as Golang, is a programming language created at Google and publicly released in the year of 2009 as an open source project. Go is a statically compiled language, built to resemble C in form and function. The story of Go begins as an internal Google experiment, to create a language which will address the flaws met in other programming languages by keeping only the “good parts”. Go is an extremely easy language to learn. Its basic concepts are drawn to a minimum, and its syntax has been designed to be clean and unambiguous. Mostly used for building distributed systems and microservices, Go has become an irreplaceable tool. One of the key factors that prove that it’s growing community and active development. In the past couple of years, Go has always been in the top 10 programming languages that developers choose for their projects. It’s a mix of simplicity, speed, and ability to act as a system language paved the path to where it is right now, and according to some, towards the future.

- Programming in Go | 30 classes | 291 EUR

Python Courses

Programming in Python has made its comeback – Python in the last few years is one of the most popular programming languages. No matter if you want to develop a desktop or web application or maybe you would like to work on the developing of an Internet web page, Python is the right choice for you. Some of the most well-known organizations that write their codes using Python are YouTube, DropBox, Google and Netflix.

Python’s vast field of usage and flexibility, as well as the simple syntax, are only establishing its status of favorite programming language amongst beginners and professional developers.

- Python – I level | 30 classes | 243 EUR
- Python – II level | 30 classes | 291 EUR
